A MIRACLE OF MODERN MEDICINE!

Housewife, 43, has 15 operations — so she can look 18!

By BEATRICE SEXTER

Lovely Lucille Azevedo is a plastic surgeon's showcase — she's revamped nearly every part of her body in a mind-boggling effort to improve her looks!

The housewife and mother of two, has had 15 operations in the past four years.

She's had her eye bags removed, her tummy tucked and her saddlebags sanctioned. She's had lip implants and breast implants, a chin reduction and a butt tuck. Docs removed her acne scars, liposuctioned the fat tissue around her waist, thickened her dark tresses with hair implants, pinned back her ears, reshaped her jaw and lifted her sagging face. Then they gave her cheek implants and a nose job.

"I'm thinking now of having my eyes enlarged," said Mrs. Azevedo, 43.

"To me, they look too small. My doctor says it's an easy enough procedure, but I'll have to wait awhile because I'm out of money."

The pretty brunette began her marathon makeover in 1988 after she was turned down for a part in an amateur play in Rio de Janeiro, where she lives.

The show's producers told her she looked too old to play the part of an 18-year-old and the news so upset her she contacted a plastic surgeon.

"At first I just planned to do something about the wrinkles," Mrs. Azevedo said in an interview with a Brazilian magazine. "Then I got to thinking that this was my chance to finally look just like I'd always wanted to look.

"I've always thought that my chin was too big and my ears stuck out.

"I've always dreamed of having a large and beautiful bosom. It just seemed like the perfect time to get myself fixed up."

The 5-foot-3 beauty says that she has spent approximately $40,000 so far on her operations and recuperations.

She had to get a second mortgage on her house to come up with the cash but she figures it's money well spent.

"I'm not ashamed about what I'm doing," the blonde babe said.

"Some people think it's weird to spend so much money on my appearance, but my looks are important to me. I intend to go on perfecting myself for the rest of my life.

"If the miracle of modern medicine can make me look younger and prettier, why not?"

YOUTHFUL-LOOKING Lucille Azevedo says she intends to go on perfecting herself for the rest of her life.

'It cost me $40,000 — but it was worth it!'

Girl, 5, killed — because she couldn't spell her own name!

A 38-year-old man beat his daughter to death with an electrical cord because she couldn't spell her name, cops say.

David Hammond was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison in the horrifying death of Sukina Kent, 5. The girl's mother, 36-year-old Patricia Kent, told a court in Bristol, England, that Hammond attacked the girl because she got confused while trying to spell her name.

Getting divorced can drive hubbies wacko

Divorced hubbies often need a shrink to help them cope with being alone — or they could become homicidal or suicidal.

"The abandoned husband tends to isolate himself," said Michael Myers of the University of British Columbia in Canada. "This type of man is capable of violence against himself or others."

They will overwork, become drug or alcohol abusers and fall prey to various physical ailments. They experience more difficulty than they or mental health professionals realize, said Myers.

STOWAWAY SHOCKER

LITTLE Leaguer Joey D'Amelio mounted a major league effort to join his father when he snuck on board a Delta Airlines jet and flew all the way to Florida!

Kid, 12, sneaks on jet to live with dad in Florida . . .

GLAD he's with dad: Little Joey D'Amelio now lives with his father Paul.

By SUSAN JAMISON

Little Joey D'Amelio sneaked on a jet in Massachusetts and flew to Florida to be with his dad — because his mom didn't know anything about baseball!

Incredibly, the 12-year-old Little Leaguer walked right past flight attendants without a ticket, boarded a Delta nonstop flight and settled into a first-class seat. He watched movies, enjoyed a free dinner and even played cards with a stewardess.

. . . because his mom didn't like baseball!

When he arrived at the Fort Lauderdale airport, he took a cab to the home of his father, Paul D'Amelio and surprised him by peeping through his window at midnight. His stunning feat caused an uproar, but Joey wound up living with his dad just as he wished.

"That crazy kid," said Paul D'Amelio, a horse trainer from Pompano Beach. "I can't believe he got away with it.

"He risked his life to come down here. He's proved he loves me."

Joey says he got frustrated with his mom because she didn't know anything about baseball. He wanted to talk baseball with his dad so many Florida where D'Amelio had gone after divorcing his wife six years ago.

"I wanted to come to my father," said Joey. "It was destiny, like something I had to do. This is where I belong, with the pain gone."

On the night of January 5, Joey walked into Logan Airport in Boston. There he tried to sneak on one Florida flight after another, but without luck. As he was about to give up, he spotted a Delta departure for Fort Lauderdale — and slipped past the attendants.

"When we took off, I felt like I was home free," the chubby fifth-grader recalled. "I was a little bit nervous and I was stuttering when I talked. But I would think, and make sure I didn't say anything to give me away. I was cool."

Flight attendants gave Joey a free headset so he could watch the movie and one played Crazy Eights with him for 50 cents a game. But no one realized that the boy was a stowaway and Joey walked off at Fort Lauderdale, 1,800 miles from home, without incident.

When he showed up at his dad's house, though, all hell broke loose.

"We just stood there with our mouths open," said a cousin, Phil D'Amelio who was there when Joey got to his father's house. "Nobody knew what to think. We didn't think to get mad. We just rushed to the door and let Joey in — everybody was so excited."

Joey's mom got mad, all right, because her son's disappearance caused her hours of worry. But she agreed that if Joey wanted so much to be with his dad, perhaps it was time he had a chance to live in Florida.

I won't budge 'til you name Brady Bunch, con tells cops

A wacky prisoner climbed up onto a jail roof and refused to come down — until officials named all six kids on The Brady Bunch!

Nobody at the Deer Island House of Correction in Boston, Mass., knew the answer was Marcia, Greg, Jan, Peter, Cindy and Bobby. But after spending five hours perched on the roof, the inmate came down anyway.

"He did this on a lark," said Deputy Penal Commissioner Joseph Hurley. "He's a character. He's been in and out of jail all his life."

Ornery oldster wouldn't budge from his ramshackle house

DEAD AT 94: GRAMPS WHO SAID 'NO' TO $2,000,000!

DETERMINED Herbert Murray kept his word — and never moved out of the house he'd lived in for most of his life.

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

A stubborn oldster vowed never to sell his rickety old house as long as he lived even though it would have made him a millionaire — and he kept his word.

Herbert Murray died at the age of 94 in Sunnybrook Medical Center, refusing to part with the ha[lf]-[ru]ined house he'd lived in for most of his life.

People were pestering him all the time, but he never broke his promise and said the home, which is surrounded by high-rises in downtown Toronto, Canada, and valued at $2 million.

"He never sold," said a close friend, Ann Johnston.

The tiny, two-story frame house is a ramshackle ruin. The paint is peeling and the porch looks as if it might fall any minute.

Murray's will left the house to his nephew and only living relative, W.A. Bert Murray, who said he definitely will sell it. He wouldn't discuss the sale price. "That's my business at the moment," said Murray.

"I don't look that far ahead. I haven't got it yet. We'll see what happens."

Sicko black magic priest forced farm girl, 12, to be his love slave!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Perverted satanist Zoltan Edes turned a gullible farm girl into a sex slave and kept her under his spell for five long years — by convincing her she was a goddess from another planet!

The beastly black magic priest carried on his racy romps with pretty Mary Jane Holloway in a room painted entirely in purple.

"Edes had this girl and her dad believing she was from the planet Irana and that anytime they entered the purple room, they were actually hurtling through space," Police Detective Clive Robson said.

"It doesn't make a lot of sense, but these obviously aren't the brightest people you're ever going to meet."

The outrageous tale began when Mary Jane's farmhand father Cyril struck up a conversation with evil Zoltan over his CB radio. Simple Cyril eventually introduced Mary Jane to the devil-worshiping weirdo, who persuaded both of them he was a visitor from a faraway planet.

"This guy convinced the father and daughter that Mary Jane was from the same planet Irana, where she'd once been married to Andorra, England. "He also convinced them he and the girl had been husband and wife on Irana."

Within weeks, smooth-talking Zoltan, then 32, had made Mary Jane his sex slave — at the tender age of 12.

And for the next five years, the middle-aged sorcerer and his farm girl [gather] in their secret purple love nest.

The bizarre arrangement finally ended when the trusting teenager got pregnant and spilled the beans to friends.

The wicked wizard has since pleaded guilty of having unlawful sex with a girl under 15 and indecent assault. He's

SOLDIER PREDICTED HIS OWN DEATH!

By SUSAN JAMISON
Staff writer

Just days after her son was killed in the Panama invasion, heartbroken mom Julie Otis got a letter from him — predicting that he would die for his country.

The letter was written before brave Roy Dennis Brown Jr. shipped out with an airborne unit to battle. He had called his mother two times before he wrote it, telling her he loved her.

"If you're reading this letter," wrote Roy, 19, "then you already know that I am dead.

"It hurts like hell to know how you'll take it, but live your life to the fullest and get over my death."

The Anaheim, Calif., Private First Class was killed in a firefight in the first hours of the military action after he parachuted into battle. He was one of two men in his unit to die in action.

But days before, the young man had been troubled by the thought that he would die — and had reached out to his beloved mother.

"A few days before they went to Panama he called me," Roy's mother recalled. "You could hear the fear. He was going out on a mission, he said. He was upset.

"He said, 'Mom, this is the hardest call I've ever had to make, but I wanted to tell you that I love you.'"

Later, Roy called a second time to tell his mother again that he loved her. After that he sat down and wrote her his last letter.

"Whatever happened," he wrote after telling his mother he knew he would die, "there was a reason. Tell everybody in the family and my friends that my death was for a good reason."

Mrs. Otis says her only child was against drugs and supported any move to oust Noriega.

"His life was not sacrificed in vain," she said. "It was for a major cause. But at the end of his letter — which was really like a last will and testament — he thanked me for every sacrifice I'd made and asked me to get his cat. See, he was still a little boy up until the end."

Weirdo walks into beauty parlors — and takes off his clothes!

Imagine their surprise when ladies at a small town beauty salon looked out from under their hair dryers — and saw a guy in a tuxedo strip right down to the buff!

"We just kind of sat there," said one employee of an Elko, Nev., hair parlor. "We were shocked."

It seems a weirdo in his late 30s got his kicks by adding a little entertainment to the flossing routine.

The man entered the beauty salon and announced he would be a strip-o-gram business in town and had been paid by an anonymous patron to provide his services, police say.

With that, the gentleman — dressed in a white shirt, black tie and tuxedo — began to remove his duds.

"He turned on a tape recorder and played some rock music," said Det. Ray Weaver of the local police force. "Then he G-string and did a little dance. After that they asked him to leave and he did.

"An hour later he did the same routine at another beauty salon in town, but this time he took off every stitch of clothing.

"When he exposed himself, they threw him out."

Weaver said he learned about this only because he one of the salons not long after the man had left. Embarrassed salon owners and their customers didn't want to be identified, he said.

"The ladies are in shock and the guy has disappeared," Weaver said.

"At first they thought it was simply a prank by someone they knew, then they realized it was really a weird

Luv-struck skunk 'marries' smelly shoe

By TILLY RANKIN

A skunk fell head over heels in love with a teenager's stinking tennis shoe and won't let anyone get near it!

"He can have the damn shoe — I just want my garage back," fumed Jackie Hartsell of Birmingham, Ala. "He's got it over in a corner beside my toolbox and tries to spray me when I poke my head through the door.

"It sounds funny but it ain't funny. I need my tools. I'd kill that skunk if my wife would let me. But the town animals, even skunks, and wants to let nature run its course."

The bizarre drama began when Hartsell's 17-year-old son Bobby dropped his filthy tennis shoes in the family's garage.

Two days later Hartsell went in for his toolbox and found the skunk curled up with one of the sneakers.

He knew better than to tangle with the crazy critter. So he slowly backed out of the garage and ran like the dickens.

"I figured the skunk would leave after a day or two but he's been here a week and still gets all lovey dovey with that shoe," said Hartsell.

"A rat and the skunk will eventually realize that he's not getting anywhere with the shoe and go back into the woods. All we can do is wait for him to leave and then get rid of that stinking sneaker."

Bobby Hartsell said he's been the butt of a lot of jokes since word got out that the skunk had fallen in love with his sneaker.

"Everybody at school calls me 'skunk foot' and 'stink foot,'" he said. "It really is embarrassing."

Paramedic causes four-car collision — then takes off, say shocked cops

By JACK ALEXANDER

A paramedic has been accused of leaving the scene of a four-car, chain-reaction accident that injured a woman.

Dennis Taylor was the driver of a 1981 Camaro that struck the rear of one car and knocked it into two other cars, according to cops in Clearwater, Fla.

"A woman is one of the cars and a man got out of the Camaro and asked if she was O.K. When she replied, 'yes,' the man got in the Camaro and drove away," said a police spokesman.

"I told him I was all right at the moment, thinking yes, I'm alive," said Catherine Kane, 33.

"I was just so shocked."

She was taken to a hospital for treatment of shoulder and neck injuries and later released.

The accident occurred when the driver of the Camaro switched lanes while traveling north on U.S. 19. The Camaro struck Miss Kane's car that was stopped for a traffic light, knocking it into the other cars, cops said.

A witness copied down the license tag number of the Camaro as it roared away. Taylor, 32, was arrested two days later and charged with felony hit-and-run and careless driving. He was released on his own recognizance.

Taylor, a Clearwater paramedic since 1980, said he thought no one else was injured but learned in the crash he suffered face cuts.

Jewelry yanks judge's chain

A judge denied a man's request for a courtappointed attorney after he spied all the gold jewelry the accused was sporting — telling him to sell it if he wanted a lawyer!

Terry L. Franklin, 36, appeared in Judge Thomas Bush's courtroom in Wichita, Kans., on misdemeanor marijuana possession charges and a count of illegal gambling.

After Judge Bush's reprimand, Franklin waived his right to a lawyer, pleaded innocent to gambling and guilty to the marijuana charges. He was fined $500 and given 120 days in the slammer. — ANN MUNNEY

How SEDUCTIVE ARE YOU?

By AMY WHITTEN

When you're hot to trot and your lover is not — do you think you've got what it takes to turn him on?

This simple little quiz will help you find out. It will give you some new insights that you can use to make your sex life sizzle — not fizzle!

Answer each question carefully. Then add up your score and see how seductive you really are.

Does your love life fizzle? Try this quiz and find out how you can make it sizzle!

PART I

Which of the following would you be willing to do?

1. Transform your appearance — lose weight, get a new hairstyle, alter your makeup — to look sexier.
2. Serve your man breakfast in bed.
3. Tell him why you love him.
4. Laugh at his jokes in public — no matter how many times you've heard them before.
5. Kiss your man goodbye in the morning and hello in the evening — and make those kisses really memorable.
6. Talk sexy to him — in and out of bed.
7. Suggest making love — whether you're in the mood or not.
8. Praise his body — even if it has gone slightly to seed.

PART II

1. You buy a see-through negligee. Your seduction strategy is to:
   A. Give your man a sexy floor show.
   B. Slip into bed, snuggle up, and draw his attention to your attire.
   C. Tell your man that you're aching to have him undress you . . . very slowly.

2. Your best friends and ego, not terribly conducive to passionate, exhilarated lovemaking. You:
   A. Go out and buy a new best friend!
   B. Ask your man to help you turn the mattress — and wear a low-cut blouse.
   C. Suggest in a sultry voice that you both go au naturel.

3. A friend sends his dear niece — and advises you to do the same. You:
   A. Follow suit, and sign the card "A Secret Admirer."
   B. Ditto, but sign with your name.
   C. Send roses to yourself and sign the card "A Secret Admirer."

4. You decide to make him jealous. At your next party, you:
   A. Monopolize the handsomest man there.
   B. Have a cozy chat with the hunk and your man, favoring the former.
   C. Wear your sexiest dress and flirt with every man in the room.

5. A magazine article recommends varying the times you make love. You:
   A. Give him the article and wait and see.
   B. Tell him, "I'm so looking forward to sex instead of Sunday lunch."
   C. Take him unawares — lead him to the bedroom when he returns from work.

6. You win a weekend away for two in a competition. You:
   A. Play down the sexy side, saying you'll be able to get to know each other better.
   B. Tell him it'll be a second honeymoon.
   C. Chat about a weekend of future pleasures — and of fun here and now!

7. You accidentally declare a 36-hour embargo on snogging. You:
   A. Lay the course but are so irritable you can barely speak to him.
   B. Praise him continually.
   C. Lavish affection on him, not saying anything that'll make sparks fly.

8. In the old days, a romantic dinner for two always produced results. You:
   A. Taste him throughout dinner — about the sexual reward you're expecting.
   B. Both get drunk and ravenous.
   C. Stir his passion to fever pitch — then serve yourself as dessert.

Stupid doctor kills 9 babies

DISMISSED Dr. Miles Kivona

By MARTHA ATKINS

An incompetent doctor has been convicted of killing nine innocent little babies who should have lived!

Between 1983 and 1988, eight infants died during childbirth or within a few days of their delivery and one fetus died in its mother's womb, all while under the care of obstetrician Miles Kivona.

The blockhead doctor blundered his way through the deliveries and then failed to send his patients to the hospital when complications arose.

"He didn't testify at his trial," prosecutor Brian Kelberg of the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office said. "But he's denied that anything he did was improper.

"To say he showed no remorse for his actions is a mild understatement."

The state Board of Medical Quality Assurance first investigated the Czechoslovakian-born doctor's involvement in a baby's death after little Amy Johnson died on Christmas Day, 1983.

Dr Kivona, 49, delivered the infant the day before and used a drug called Pitocin to induce labor.

The drug caused strong, steady, repeated contractions that reduced the baby's oxygen supply instead of sending Amy to the hospital, the board charged. Kivona handed her to her parents and said: "Here's your baby, take her home and enjoy her." The father testified in court.

When the Johnsons called the next day and told Dr Kivona that Amy was having trouble breathing, the stupid ... one bit sorry!

... and fatally

one told them to give Amy oxygen either. "A hospital would do the same thing and charge money for it," he said. She died that night.

In that case and three others it investigated the board failed to revoke Dr Kivona's license.

"The board concluded there was nothing to pursue because of terribly erroneous information given by Kivona," said Kelberg. "They took his word that he hadn't used the drug Pitocin when he really had."

Even Dr. Kivona's attorney admitted there was no defense for what he'd done. "There were nine dead babies and with nine altogether, I didn't stand a chance," said Richard Lambert.

Dr Kivona is awaiting sentencing on the nine manslaughter murder convictions, but he'll probably spend the rest of his life in prison.

"The most he could get is 16 years so like in a state prison," said Kelberg.

Talking gadget keeps pets in line

Does your pet get into mischief when you leave him home alone? Now you can yell at him even when you're not there — with a nifty new gizmo called the Photo-Electronic Talker.

The high-tech animal agitator, which attaches to the wall or any object your pooch pooch tends to trouble, lets you speak toward the couch, for example, the Talker writes its instructions and screams "Scram," or something like that, in your very own voice. Your pet thinks just as it caught him in the act.

The Talker, which works indoors only, takes a message that's 8 to 10 seconds long — long enough to convince your pet you mean business. (3 more gizmo can be ordered from Animal Pet-ate Products, telephone number (800) 255-3743.)

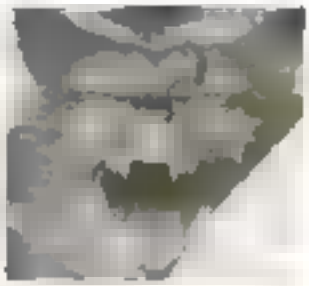
How to tell if your pet needs to see the vet



RUNNY EYES in cats could be an indication of a deadly virus.

By ANN MUGNET

Dogs and cats get sick just like humans but it's not always easy to know when your four-legged pal is feeling low. Now, a panel of animal experts has put together a list of warning signs to tell you when your pet needs to pay a visit to the vet.

Use these 7 easy-to-spot warning signs

1. Extreme thirst. If your pooch is drinking an excessive amount of water, it could mean diabetes or a uterine inflammation.

In cats, if thirst is accompanied by depression, loss of appetite and frothy vomiting, your cat may have feline panleukopenia. This virus can be fatal but is avoidable if your cat is vaccinated against it.

Kitty could also have feline infectious anemia, a disease that destroys a cat's red blood cells.

2. Teary eyes. Your pet may have distemper, a respiratory disease, and should see a vet. It could also indicate feline infectious peritonitis, a deadly virus cats can be susceptible against.

3. Vomiting. Don't worry if it only happens once in a while.

Cats throw up to get rid of hair balls, and dogs may because they've eaten too much or too fast.

But if it's happening a lot, call your vet at once.

4. Blood kidney. This could mean your dog has an infection.

5. Dull fur. A diet that lacks the proper vitamins and minerals can cause. Bowser's fur to be lifeless and drab. Store-bought pet foods have all the nutrients your mutt needs, so if that's what you feed him and his coat still looks lousy, see your vet.

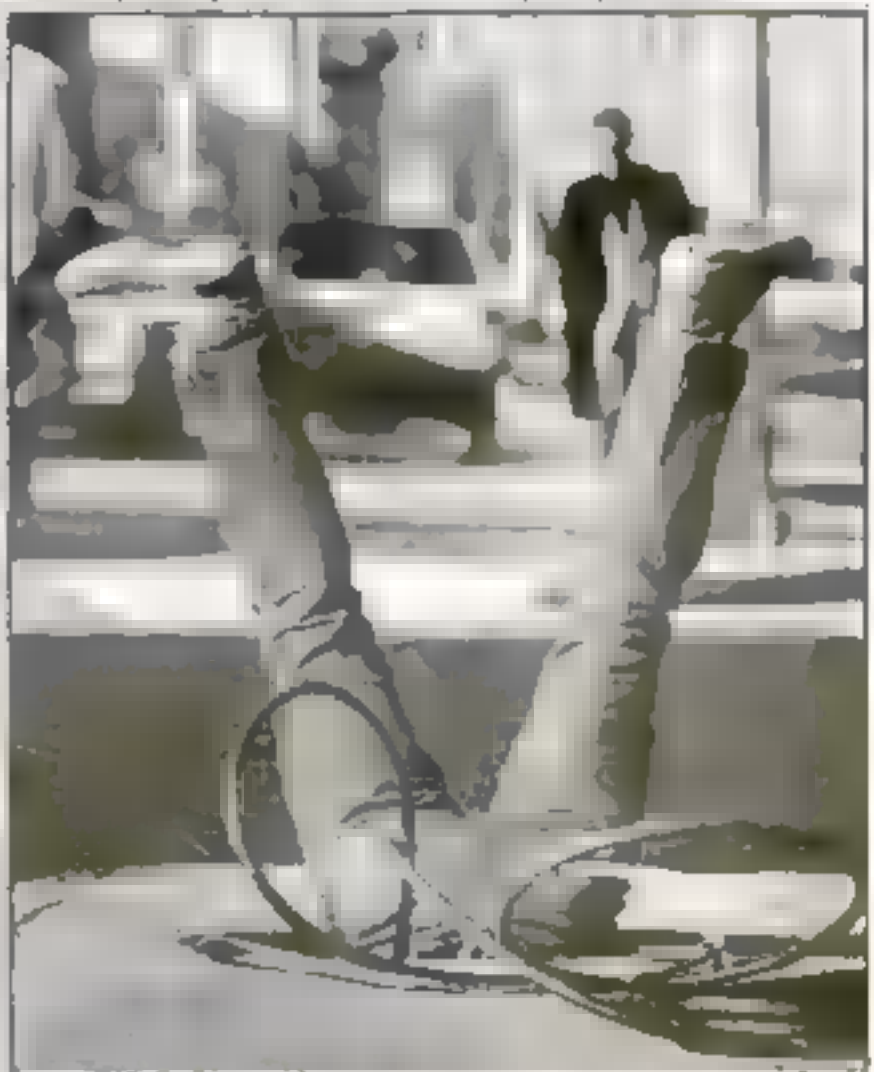
6. Coughing and sneezing. Your pet may only have a cold, which all animals get from time to time, or it could be something more serious.

A pooch with a chronic cough might have a weak heart. And a tabby with a harsh cough, irregular sneezing and teary eyes could have feline viral rhinotracheitis, another fatal disease it can be easily protected from by immunization.

7. If your pet is sluggish and won't eat. It's probably sick and you should take it to the vet.

To keep your precious pooch or fluffy feline healthy, take it to the vet every year for a checkup and for vaccinations against disease.

CHRONIC COUGHING may signal a weak heart.



Surgery nightmare!

Doc cuts off the wrong leg

An elderly man got the shock of his life when he woke up after surgery and discovered docs had cut off the wrong leg!

The 76-year-old patient should have had his right leg amputated but surgeon-in-training Jan de Letter lopped off the left one by mistake.

The surgeon Luc Frost was held responsible in the mishap at St Jan Hospital in Bruges, Belgium, because he was in charge of the operating team. Frost was given a three-month suspended jail sentence and ordered to pay $12,000 compensation to the old man's family. Dr de Letter wasn't National Institute's Doctors now advise public to use this Weight-Loss Tablet.

Doctors at National Institute of Weight Control find specially developed tablet plan produces "Fat-Evaporation" Effect.

Adult men and women lose huge amounts of weight.

NEW YORK, N.Y. (for immediate release) – For the first time in its history, the National Institute of Weight Control has approved a weight loss tablet. Because this tablet plan promotes what the Institute's doctors call as a "Fat Evaporation" Effect, they are calling the weight-loss tablet plan Quickweight. (Even though other experts question use of this word.)

Known as the Primary Weight Loss Tablet, owners of the Institute maintain that this tablet is the most effective ever developed for losing weight.

According to the Institute's doctors, patients responding to the Primary Tablet System, with each rapid loss of weight, the Institute has a responsibility to let the general public benefit from this method — so that adults everywhere could lose their excess pounds.

The National Institute of Weight Control is a privately funded organization not affiliated with any government agency. Weight loss will vary depending on individual.

Institute's Experts find all types of people can use Primary Tablet System to quickly lose up to 75 pounds

The remarkable tablet was developed by a group of weight control experts to enable their weight patients (especially addictive eaters of sweets and rich foods) to lose weight quickly. And, most importantly, without any harmful side effects.

These experts found we can use the Primary Tablet plan to quickly lose weight — because the way it enables people to lose weight is considered the "perfect" way to drop off excess pounds. Patients who followed the Institute's tablet plan have lost as much as 75 pounds. Because of their experiences, other patients who had severe weight problems (as much as 75 pounds) have regained their self-confidence.

The former director of a major university weight control center described this phenomenon as the "Fat Evaporation" Effect.

Fat cells that had been bursted into calorie energy, instead of being stored as fat. Thus, the Institute's doctors call this weight loss "Evaporation." Effect. As a result, fat is steadily eliminated from the stomach, hips, legs, thighs, buttocks, everywhere — from all parts of a person's body.

First weight-loss pressure-sensitized Automatic

Doctors at the Institute state that because the "Evaporation" Effect begins so quickly — and keeps going at this steadily eliminated — the entire process could be termed "automatic."

The Institute's doctors want to make this point:

Patients using the Primary Tablet plan will not have any special exercising. Or depressing diets of any kind.

According to one of the Institute's medical doctors, "even when Primary Tablet users are found previously thought to be 'borderline,' they continued to lose weight. All they need to do is use the Primary Tablet as instructed, and let the Fat Evaporation Effect begin."

To explain the severe weight-loss tablet that has enabled overweight people to quickly shed pounds, read this:

The National Institute of Weight Control has approved the Primary Tablet plan because they have now approved, together with diet doctors on staff, of any adult who responds to this notice.

To lose weight quickly, write to the Institute. And you will receive the following:

1. A complete 10 day supply of the Primary Tablet (completely for you in the Institute and representing the work of noted weight loss experts and prominent weight control specialists).
2. Complete details and information on the tablet and on why you can rapidly lose weight this way.
3. Plus, if you like, you can receive a Personal Nutritional Analysis, normally costing $10.00, FREE of charge. This detailed individual report will be developed for you by America's leading nutritional medical experts when you contact the Institute. It will be given to you without cost.

(Note: If for any reason, the staff and consultants at the special unit which you have written about recently will be submitted.)

Mail your coupon now. Once you receive your tablets, your "Fat Evaporation" Effect should begin within 24 hours.

My cure for the stupid Super Bowl

It's been over two weeks since the Stupid Bowl was played and I'm still pigskin-hiving mad that I wasted my time watching the dam thing!

That late great circus king P T Barnum said there's a sucker born every minute. He would have made a fortune at the Super Bowl ticket — a event that got millions of people — including yours truly — to watch the great San Francisco Forty Niners beat the daylights out of the Denver Burros, 55 to 10.

The only way the Denver Burros might have won the game is if the Forty Niners had left the field. Seven plays later Denver might have scored.

And to top it all, I was dumb enough to throw a Super Bowl party for the whole Anger clan. I'll be adding the NFL a bill for $35 worth of potato chips, $4 in onion dip, $22.80 in hot dogs and buns, $8.50 and drinks and $98.00 for all the beer that went to waste when everybody fell asleep watching the game and then trying to cheer on Cleveland or Cincinnati or Pittsburgh to finish the game for them.

New Denver is a great city and the sports fans there are tops. But I think most of them would agree it would have been a better game if the Buffalo Bills had been replaced early in the second quarter by the Steelers or the Browns — or even my fat daughter-in-law's Bridge club for ladies only.

I know the Burros would have been embarrassed about being trashed all over the field — about as humiliated as I was standing in the middle of my own Super Bowl party that emptied out in minutes after the forward kickoff.

When watching the dumb pro football game, I'm amused by the commercials more exciting than the game. And given Albert's dislike of pro football as going down the tubes.

Next year I'm watching

CHUCK Barris of the TV Gong Show could save the Super Bowl next year — by gonging the amateurs right off the field.

GAS MASK TERROR!

Girl's 9-hour ordeal at the hands of a madman!

SUSPECT William Grau, 48, is held in jail on $1 million bail.

By ANN HUGHEY
Correspondent

A beautiful teenager was held captive for more than nine terrifying hours by a fiend who forced her to wear a military gas mask while he raped her — and then threw her into a 12-foot-deep pit where he threatened to bury her alive!

The four-foot wide hole was equipped with a plastic cover and an air supply, which screamed attacker William Grau, 48, threatened to cut off if the helpless victim didn't keep quiet, according to police.

"The man told her she'd thoughts for a long time about leaving her with her and burying her alive," said Capt. Gary Terry of the Sheriff's Department based in Tampa, Fla.

The teen was attacked with a pistol wearing and blindfold to the road and then drove to a remote area where police said he tied her hands behind her back with duct tape and her mouth was gagged with a sock, authorities said.

The defenseless girl told cops she was dragged across the yard and forced into the pit. During the next twenty hours the terrified teen was taken out of the pit, forced to put on a military gas mask and raped, said police.

[illegible] The victim was taken to Tampa General Hospital and released.

Cops declined to reveal her name.

Neighbors said Grau was a loner who stayed to himself.

Grau was jailed Authorities charged him with rape, kidnapping and false imprisonment.

SNORT!

Mom eats spaghetti — through her NOSE!

Still 'the talk of the town' Anna Fatteri says she's earned over $1,000 for charity by eating spaghetti through her nose. But watch out, beginners — experts warn that this stunt is dangerous!

By IRWIN FISHER

Human vacuum cleaner Anna Fatteri eats spaghetti through her nose!

The pretty mother of three from North Palm Beach, Fla., started "nose dining" as an entertaining party trick.

She now gives exhibitions at church functions and charity events because people are willing to fork over good money to watch her shovel spaghetti through her schnoz.

"People think I'm crazy but I've earned over $1,000 for charity and it's really kind of neat to do it," said Mrs. Fatteri, 39.

"It's hard to describe how annoying spaghetti feels as it comes out. And some people don't think it's ladylike. But it really does add dimension to a meal."

Mrs. Fatteri first amazed spaghetti at a party in 1987 and since then has done it up to 20 times a year for churches and charity events.

She says that her teeth are whiter and brighter than they were when she used them to chew mouthwatering pasta.

She also says she eats less when "nose dining," which helps her keep her weight in check.

"Shooting hard did get me into trouble once," said Mrs. Fatteri.

"I tried some peppers and no go! All it got were a few kernels and husks stuck in my throat.

"My nose hurt for a week afterward and I've banned myself to spaghetti ever since."

A nose specialist recruited by The NEWS advises people to think twice before they give nose dining a try.

"It could be dangerous," he said. "You could easily choke to death because a blood clot like this

'Miss Piggy' weds her Prince Charming

RIGHT NUMBER! It all happened when hubby-to-be Lee Marcus called for some Social Security information and got Debbie Stevens on the phone. Three weeks later they wed

Tragic ugly duckling finds love in chance phone call

By DICK DONOVAN

Tragic "Miss Piggy" Debbie Stevens was born with a horribly disfigured face that made her lonely life a living hell — until she met her handsome Prince Charming who's making all her wildest dreams come true!

Right out of the blue, a chance phone call from a stranger swept Debbie into a whirlwind three-week romance that climaxed when she and Lee Marcus became husband and wife.

"It's all a dream come true," Debbie said as she stood up in her sparkling bridal gown. "I never thought any man could be interested in someone who looked like me."

People used to call me Miss Piggy. They didn't want to be around. I cried myself to sleep every night before Lee came into my life." Lee came into Debbie's life when he called the Social Security office in Birmingham, England where she worked as a clerk.

I had been trying to get some information on Social Security rules and having no luck," 26-year-old Lee explained.

I had about given up when I decided to make just one more call. That was the first time I talked with her.

"Then a day or so later, she called me at the Housing Office where I was working at the time. Debbie has a fantastic laugh and she just swept me off my feet.

"We called each other back and forth for a few days. Then I got up the courage to ask her for a date. I was terrified she would say no. But she said yes.

"She warned me that she was very ugly. But I told her it didn't matter. It's what you are on the inside that counts."

For Debbie, that first date was the answer to her prayers. As a teenager, she was shunned by everyone but her devoted mom Pamela.

"I was always on the outside looking in," Debbie said. "While all the other girls my age were going on dates, I was always home, crying my heart out for someone to love me.

"Then Lee came along and it was a dream come true. I was the happiest girl alive when we were married."

LOVEBIRDS! Lee and Debbie after their big wedding.

Can this incredible seer actually know what lottery numbers will come up winners?

(and let you win up to $2,000 to $10,000 in 2 months)

This hypnotic state belongs to Sophros. He is one of three psychics who have the scientific world in a stir (the other two are Hella Haasse of the United States and Vissarion of the Soviet Union). Sophros can say how events will unfold in the near future — such as the outcome of a horserace or lottery. His secret: he expands his amazing faculty of "seeing" using a technique developed by the brilliant mathematician, D. Lord. This technique has been construed as effective mental "screen" which filters out numbers with little or no chance of winning and highlights the "lucky" ones. The Winning Numbers for the next 10 Lottery drawings will be revealed by Sophros, but only to those who meet the following 5 conditions.

How can you receive your Winning Numbers?

This ad is part of a major study into Sophros' psychic powers. Anyone can participate and receive the winning numbers for the next 10 Lottery drawings - if you meet the following 5 conditions. If you do, send in the free coupon as soon as possible for confidential, strictly private details. Then you will only be sent his 6 FIVE words of the U.S. and will remain private forever. After receiving the Winning Numbers just tell us how much you wish in the upcoming Lotteries.

Winning Numbers anonymous — please read carefully.

Sophros keeps only Lotto after receiving your Winning Numbers although this is obligatory.

- Don't reveal your Winning Numbers to anyone else
- Only use your winnings for your personal needs and those of your family. Payment of debts, purchase of an apartment or house, new car, vacations, etc.

Sophros' message to those meeting the 5 conditions

It is clear that if persons meeting these conditions do not demonstrate unusual psychic powers, Sophros believes this is due to one of the following reasons:

- Lack of faith in the Winning Numbers already and personally dedicated by Sophros to play and guess after another.
- Playing the lottery regularly but to receive your free reply after a few drawings.

No one will ever reveal your name but the big winnings you receive will serve as proof of the complete effectiveness of the "mental screen" used by Sophros - particularly for those who've never won before and don't think of themselves as being very lucky. See the 5 conditions on the left.

In a plain sealed envelope, all we ask is that you do the following:

- Use the Winning Numbers strictly and privately dedicated by Sophros to play and guess after another.
- Play the lottery regularly but to receive your free reply after a few drawings.

from the Knights Templar. This is possible, but we cannot. I am president of the Research and Studies Center and work closely with top scientists, psychiatrists and doctors. I have succeeded in adapting a technique discovered by the brilliant mathematician D. Child. He has used it to enter into an extraordinary multi-dimensional space. I have managed to create a mental "mental screen" which combines perceptual filters with images of pure psychic power. I have agreed to cooperate in a major study of my psychic powers because this is the only concrete and total way to prove that they are real. Then I can use this extraordinary future and that I can make it possible to win large sums of money in the lottery. Follow my advice carefully and the results will astound you! One final thing: please return the form as soon as possible if you meet the 5 conditions. Do this right now as you will not forget. Just enclose five stamps. That is all you are asked to do at this time.

HERE ARE THE 5 CONDITIONS

Sophros believes that the power to see numbers is a gift from above which should be used first and foremost to help those who are disadvantaged. That is why details about the Winning Numbers for the next 10 Lottery drawings will only be sent to those fulfilling the 5 following conditions.

1. You have never won more than $1,000 in the Lottery.
2. You believe that you could never win $2,000 to $10,000 in only 2 months.
3. You need cash urgently, for unpaid bills
4. You are ready to play the Winning Numbers [illegible] advised by Sophros, and give him your complete trust.
5. You agree to tell us how much you won (confidentiality guaranteed).

Please be honest with us. Don't apply for your Winning Numbers unless you have real financial problems.

My life's a living hell because my hubby stinks to high [illegible]

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti: You've got to help me before I die of embarrassment. My problem is my husband. He wears cheap — and I mean really cheap — cologne. It stinks to high heaven and turns off everyone around him. I've told him that the stuff smells awful. But he likes it and won't change brands.

What in the world can I do, Dotti? It's humiliating to go anywhere with my husband — blank that in Rapid City

Dear Stunk. Let your hubby wear his cheap cologne in peace.

Every day I get letters from women with problems who refuse to BATHE. How those jerks get here problems. You don't!

Why do people say I'm a nerd?

Dear Dotti: My life is horrible. I'm in the eighth grade and everybody in my class calls me a nerd.

They pick on me and beat me up after school. Why do people call me a nerd? What can I do about it? — Hopeless in Elizabethtown

Dear Hopeless. People call you a nerd because you are a nerd — but there's hope for you yet.

Get down to the nearest karate or kung-fu school and learn how to defend yourself. There go back-to-school fast!

My mom won't let me wear a bikini

Dear Dotti: You're not going to believe this but my mother won't let me wear a bikini. My measurements are 36-23-34 but she says I wouldn't look good in a skimpy bathing suit because they're designed for skinny nothingness.

I've begged and pleaded with her to change her mind. But she's very firm. How can I get my mother to change. Dotti?

I'd appreciate any advice you can give me. — No Bikinis in Rhode Island

Dear No. You don't say how old you are but I suspect that you're still in your teens. As long as you live under your mother's roof and eat your mother's food, you should respect her wishes. When you're old enough to support yourself, you can wear all the bikinis you like.

Until then do what your mother says. And don't act like a little tramp!

How can I find myself a husband?

Dear Dotti: Please give me some straightforward advice. How can a single girl in her 30s find a decent man to marry? — Looking in Swartzens

Dear Looking. People like you never seem to realize that if you want a good man, go out and find one.

That's what smart girls have been doing since the beginning of time!

My precious dog is like a child to me

Dear Dotti: I love my dog Polly and treat her like family and want everyone else to do the same.

Unfortunately, people laugh and call me "a dog's mama" and refuse to treat Polly like the little girl she is. How can I make people realize that Polly is just as human as they are?

It's really important to me. — Pawtucket Girl in Philly

Dear Pawtucket. If you want to put your Polly on a pedestal, go right ahead. Just don't expect other people to do the same unless they're as obsessive as you are!

Dotti, do you think I'm pretty?

Dear Dotti: I have enclosed a picture of myself with this letter. Please tell me the truth. Do you think I'm pretty? It's important for me to know because I lack confidence. If an important party tells me I'm a looker, I'll certainly feel better. — Wondering in Nevada

Dear Wondering. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. But you asked for my honest opinion so I'll give it to you straight. No

Dotti will answer your letters — and will NOT sell your name to anyone. Write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Confidential

Dear Confused in Pennsylvania: Don't be a fool. A good doctor has no right to make you strip for an examination.

Dear Lost in Seattle: I definitely don't advocate child abuse but a little spanking never hurt!

Dear Loser in New York: Most New Yorkers are obnoxious. It's clear from your letter that you are, too.

Dear Single in Schenectady: A lot of people don't have the smarts to get ahead in this old world. You're obviously one of them.

Ask the Countess

Dreams of death are scaring the willies out of me

Dear Countess: Every night I dream that my husband dies. After his funeral I move back home with my parents and I fall in love with a childhood sweetheart. Countess, I love my husband and this dream is driving me up a wall. What does it mean? I feel so guilty when I wake up in the morning that I think I'm going insane. — Vexed in Boston writes readers personal letters based on your horoscope. Write to Countess Sophia Sarah, World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla., 33462. Include your birth date. The Countess writes to you by return mail. Do not send money.

COUNTESS SOPHIA SARAH

Dear Vexed. The meaning of your dream is quite simple. You're clinging to the past because you are afraid of growing older. I peered into your future and saw that you will soon resolve this conflict. Stop this dream — and find the contentment and happiness you crave.

Dear Countess: My husband and I had separated after 14 years of marriage. We have two children and I still love him very much. Do you think he will ever come back to me and our five children or should I get on with my life and stop waiting on him? — Waiting in Chicago

Dear Waiting. The answer is clear. Your husband will return to you. I see him coming back to you in a vision possibly because you aren't really sure whether you want your husband back or not. Once you make up your own mind your future will be much clearer. Meanwhile you should do everything possible to get your OWN life and thoughts on track.

Dear Countess: I think psychics and astrologers are full of baloney. What do you have to say about that? — Serious in Lansing

Dear Serious. I think you are entitled to your opinion. I also think you should see a doctor for a thorough examination right away. My crystal ball tells me you're suffering from a severe mental disorder.

PERSONAL TO . . .

Candy in Denver: I see nothing but success and good fortune coming your way in the months to come. This is an excellent time to change jobs. And don't forget to enter every contest you can!

Worried in Glendale: Your new business associate is evil. Cease all dealings with him immediately.

Puzzled in Newport News: I don't care what his teacher says, your son is a genius with a 156-plus I.Q. His problems in school stem from a hearing problem that a hearing aid will correct immediately.

RAT

YOUR TRAITS: Your lively personality brings you triumph and trouble. Rat. You are a hard worker with tons of energy and not very much patience. Intelligent and lively, your tremendous self-confidence can lead you to scorn the advice of others and act impulsively.

You call things as you see them and your views are valued by others. You like to be in the limelight and you're usually there, with funny anecdotes.

YOUR FUTURE: This is your year, Rat, and you're going to enjoy it. You'll achieve some of your most important goals, including a major advance in your work.

At home, things will be busy for married Rats, possibly with a new addition to the family.

OX

YOUR TRAITS: Your energy, original thinking and love of challenge make you a natural leader, Ox. But you can be impatient and restless and when things don't work out for you, you tend to sink into despair. Your stubbornness leads to conflict, which you thrive on.

You are usually at the top of your profession where you give instead of take orders. People are usually anxious to please you.

YOUR FUTURE: This will be a year of good fortune and achievement. You'll need to concentrate on one thing at a time and seek excellent advice before investing money. If you use caution, you'll thrive and find yourself in great demand.

Cupid will be your companion this year, with single Oxen possibly becoming engaged or married. Don't overexert — get plenty of rest for the good year ahead.

TIGER

YOUR TRAITS: You are hard working, conscientious and determined. You are also very ambitious and when you meet with obstacles you can be stubborn and a poor loser.

Your temperament is quiet, placid, and down-to-earth. You have a great sense of humor as well as a gift for music and the arts.

YOUR FUTURE: What a year this will be for you, Tiger. Your financial picture will be rainy, so it's a good time to put something aside for a rainy day. Any work you undertake this year will reward you handsomely later.

You'll have some surprises in store, but you can use these to your advantage.

DRAGON

YOUR TRAITS: A real charmer, you are. You can make friends with anyone, anytime, anyplace. You love to be where the action is and you are great to have Rooster temper under control. Don't meddle in the affairs of others and don't get involved in matters that have nothing to do with you.

You will be much in demand socially. Remember to watch your health

RABBIT

YOUR TRAITS: You've got a tendency to be self-centered, but that doesn't keep you from having friends. In fact, you are extremely popular for your charm, your quick wit and great talents.

You have many interests and you will follow up on them, traveling, exploring new things and adapting easily to new situations. Methodical, however, you get caught up in things then fail to follow through.

YOUR FUTURE: A super year is ahead for you, Rabbit. Frustrations and obstacles vanish and projects proceed smoothly.

Things will actually get better and better before the year is over, especially if you take care of your finances. And socially, things will be great.

SNAKE

YOUR TRAITS: You are quick-witted and alert and an excellent judge of people. But you can also be stubborn. People admire you for your honesty and they trust you. Even though you're sometimes short-tempered, you are a loving parent and a helpful friend.

YOUR FUTURE: You'll need all your Snake smarts to keep ahead of events. You'll face frustrating obstacles and lack of support. Still, you'll achieve a lot by using dogged determination.

MONKEY

YOUR TRAITS: You like high living and luxuries, but you also enjoy the simple beauties of nature. You are highly artistic, a real perfectionist who acts with strength when you must. You'll get your own way with charm and cunning ways and you are often the center of attention among friends.

Monkeys are conservative folks who like to be part of the team and leave decisions to others. You can be reluctant to share your feelings but you love your family and devote a lot of time to them.

YOUR FUTURE: Accept all invitations, Monkey, because you could meet someone this year who will make your fortune. Work opportunities will crop up later this year. Leap at them.

HORSE

YOUR TRAITS: You're a caring, considerate person with a Horse's love of freedom and independence. You avoid arguments. You have a calming influence on others and are often sought out for advice.

YOUR FUTURE: You're going to have to speak up this year, Horse, if you expect to get what you want. Step cautiously in business or financial dealings and you will do well.

Your home life won't be at its best for a while but if you are open about your feelings, problems will be resolved. When you are under stress, remember to take care of your health. A program of exercise and a healthy diet should keep you shipshape.

GOAT

YOUR TRAITS: You're a flamboyant person who loves positions of authority and has a great deal of self-confidence. Take care that you don't get carried away. Though You have a tendency to rush ahead with things that with careful thinking you could probably set do at all.

YOUR FUTURE: Goats will have a lot to look about in the coming year because Horse years are great for them. Difficulties at home will be cleared up, social life will be terrific and work will progress well.

Improvements to your home — or even moving into a new home — could likely

ROOSTER

YOUR TRAITS: You are intelligent, creative and curious and a lifetime of learning has made you an excellent source of advice for others. You are persuasive in discussions and a great problem solver.

YOUR FUTURE: It'll be a happy year for you — provided you keep your

DOG

YOUR TRAITS: You've a straightforward character. You hate hypocrisy, which is why people enjoy your company. You are honest, kind, understanding, and can be trusted to help when help is needed.

It's hard for you to say "no," though, and you can be taken advantage of. You can be a spendthrift, too. You're a creature of comfort who shuns large gatherings for small get-togethers with friends and loved ones.

YOUR FUTURE: Don't hide your light under a bushel basket this year, Dog, because the Horse year is a time when you need to assert yourself. By getting others to notice you, you will improve your fortunes and meet others who can help you later on.

PIG

YOUR TRAITS: Pigs trot through life effortlessly because their intelligence makes things easy for them. They prefer quiet and tend to be slow to take others into their confidence.

Highly energetic, Pigs make excellent workers but they can also be ruthless and slow to recover from failures. Pigs are deep thinkers who enjoy challenges and change jobs and interests often. They are witty and good-looking.

YOUR FUTURE: The low-down on you, Pig, is that the noise of the Horse will be quiet. Candy thieves will be called for among working Pigs.

Eating [illegible]nas is good for boozers

Boozing increases blood pressure but folks can lower it simply by bingeing on bananas, sky docs!

Researchers at the University of California found that potassium helps reverse the increase in blood pressure caused by drinking. And because bananas are one of the best natural sources of potassium, boozers should make like a monkey and chow down on the fruit.

Exercise can make you sick!

By S. WILLIAMS

Strenuous exercise can make you sick!

That's the warning from researchers who say that hard workouts reduce the number of disease-fighting cells in the body and open the door to infection.

University of Nebraska experts found that competitive swimmers are highly susceptible to upper respiratory infections while they are in training.

At Loma Linda University in Riverside, Calif., experts discovered that marathon runners are at high risk of getting sick for up to 72 hours after races.

Nobody knows why strenuous exercise lowers the body's immunity to illness.

But Glen Blair, executive chairman of the health sciences department at Loma Linda, says: "We know that strenuous training creates small tears in the muscles.

"It may be that a great share of the body's immune defenses are called on to repair them, leaving fewer defenses available to fight infections."

Rat race

Poor folks who can't afford to own horses or greyhounds, Robert L. Tetley of Elkins, W.V., has perfected racing tadpoles.

His escape-free rodent raceway provides gerbil derbies for bors, sightsides and rodentations. "They're thoroughbreds," said Tetley. "I train them myself."

The rodent raceway consists of layers separated vertically by a board, each with a web through front for the spectators.

Bookmen are placed into detachable starting boxes, which are then attached to the raceway at the starting line and which open at the same time.

Avalanche survivor claws through snow with 2 broken arms

By DICK DONOVAN

Heroic Simon Openshaw clawed through tons of snow in a superhuman bid to save two climbing pals buried alive in an Alpine avalanche — even though both of his arms were shattered!

The 27-year-old mountaineer dug for hours with his bare hands in his futile effort to rescue Robert Hewitt and Andy Poole from their tomb of snow.

Simon finally managed to tunnel down to Hewitt. But when he reached his friend, Hewitt was dead.

Though his body streamed with the pain of his shattered arms and frostbitten hands, the wild-eyed survivor continued to claw into the snow, digging against huge that he might reach Poole and find him still alive.

But Simon was unable to reach his trapped friend. Poole's frozen body was never dug out.

SEARCH Simon Openshaw digs for hours in the snow to free his friends but was too late

The 27-year-old mountaineer died Thursday, March 31, in a search party from the Slovenk village of Pribilnum, near the Italian border.

The killer avalanche slid thundered down on the three British climbers as they descended the snow-blanketed 4,000-foot slope of Mt. Triglavski. A fourth member of the party, 21-year-old David Millward, had taken a slightly different route down and escaped being buried.

But Millward saw the avalanche and knew that his companions had been directly in its path.

Realizing there was little he could do without help he hurried 10 miles to alert rescuers in Kranjska.

The pain was almost unbearable," Simon said while recovering in the Bled hospital. "I was numb from the cold and I had to fight to stay awake. I knew that I had to keep digging or die. I never prayed so hard in my life.

"Finally after what seemed an eternity, I was free. I didn't even stop to rest. I just started digging in the spot where I had last seen Robert. I dug for hours, but when I reached him he was dead.

"I just lay there in the snow crying. That's when the rescue party from the village found me. They took me and Robert down the mountain and went back for Andy the next day.

"I don't know why it is that I lived and my friends died. I guess I'll have to accept things as they come which put a high mountain [illegible] for getting me out of that frozen grave."

Man ordered to serve as juror — at his own trial!

Alcuin Gentry had the perfect excuse for ducking jury duty. He was the defendant!

Gentry, accused of heading a pot-smuggling ring, was scheduled to be tried before U.S. District Court Judge James Paine at the same time he'd been ordered to serve as a juror.

"I couldn't believe they were really trying to summon him for his own trial as a juror," defense attorney Stephen Bowers said in West Palm Beach, Fla. "He'd probably end up being foreman."

Judge Paine says Gentry, 36, can count on being excused from jury duty.

Strip joints get government loans

The Jews in Canada made exotic loans to 25 businessmen who took the money and opened strip joints.

"This government does not believe we should have a government institution in the business of funding strip clubs," said Industry Minister Marvin Andre in Ottawa, Canada.

The government has stopped making the loans.

Landlord seizes woman's pets!

A landlord who claims his tenant owes him $12,000 back rent got a court order to seize her property — including her pet dog and cat!

"They're just like my children and this is like someone kidnapping them and holding them for ransom," said angry pet owner Lynell Zeleska, who rents a house in New Orleans.

Landlord John Chambers said he was just taking advantage of a Louisiana law that considers pets as property.

"There's no intention of doing anything that's going to hurt the animals," Chambers declared. "It take a backseat to no one in liking animals."

Hooded kook superglues gal's eyelids

A young woman was asleep when a masked burglar sneaked into her bedroom — and superglued her eyelids together.

The 23-year-old medical student awoke to find her face burning. She shouted at the masked attacker, who fled through a kitchen window.

She was taken by her parents to a hospital in Slough, England, for treatment of glue burns.

Police said the burglar had a towel over his head and wore a mask.

Boxing champ Mike Tyson will get $100G to ref wrestling match!

By BERNIE BAHNER
Wrestling correspondent

At last, a wrestling ref they can't push around. World heavyweight boxing champ Mike Tyson will be paid more than $100,000 to lay down the law when Hulk Hogan tangles with "Macho Man" Randy Savage February 23 in Detroit.

But get this: The Macho Man has been shooting off his mouth again, telling everybody he'll have Tyson bowing at his feet before the NBC prime-time special is through.

The inside word: Tyson is ready to shut rude Randy's yap with a right cross to the kisser if he gets out of line during the battle of the titans.

By the way, Tyson may also have a major, super role in Wrestlemania VI at the Toronto Skydome on April 1.

That gorgeous vamp of pro wrestling who calls herself Woman won't contest with almost retiring Rick Rude. Since she has her hooks into the NWA world champion himself, "Nature Boy" Ric Flair.

And the lusty brunette hasn't no apologies for her behavior. "As the most beautiful woman in the world, I can have any man I want," she told me. "Ric Flair was the ultimate challenge for my formidable charms. Why shouldn't the best be with the best?"

Hey, Woman is certainly candid. But the best? A lot of us would prefer Missy Hyatt any night of the week. Besides, it's well known that Woman's real steady boyfriend is Commissioner Kevin Sullivan, and Flair is just a pawn in their evil game.

Of course, Flair has no one to blame but himself. He had a great partnership with Sting, the Four Horsemen colleague, but the Nature Boy turned on the Stinger during a stretcher-ing match earlier this month in Corpus Christi. Yes, it's no coincidence that this all happened within days after Woman invited Flair to jog her for dinner and a "serious discussion." As a wrestler, Flair has absolutely no weaknesses, but outside the ring, he's a sucker for a pretty thing in a skirt.

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Dreams can come true. This week the realization of a long-awaited financial goal could materialize.

With the possible increase in your income, you may find the need of a financial advisor.

Be generous with those you please, but don't go overboard.

Don't listen to petty talk about neighbor — make your own decisions. And do try to keep your temper with a troublesome neighbor!

The weekend is full of love and romance, and relaxing.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Your confidence is high, and you'll be able to accomplish tasks with ease.

You should wear all shades of green this week, especially when trying to influence or impress those around you.

Your best day is Thursday, and lucky numbers are 27 and 28.

A minor sun problem could be the cause of midweek tension.

The weekend favors socializing and mingling with the crowd. Pay attention to that special someone.

Indulge yourself, arrange for some private time for you and your beloved to enjoy quiet surroundings. You'll both feel the better for it.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Smooth sailing and blue skies are indicated for you this week.

Your enthusiasm and high spirits are catching, influencing those around you.

Keep dreaming those dreams and nothing else, as that pot of gold at the end of your rainbow is within reach at this time.

The weekend finds your beloved in a cooperative mood, open to your ideas and suggestions.

Go out and enjoy yourself on a romantic outing.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Hold on to your hat, the next three months could go by in a blur as you are caught up in a fun-filled social whirl! Your popularity will be at its zenith as friends and kin call on you to be the life of their parties.

A friend suddenly comes to you for advice and help. Give help, but don't give away all your spare cash.

Spending could get out of hand if you follow your generous heart. Save something for a sudden chance to invest in a lucky project.

It's the right year to break away from routine and get really romantic.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You begin the week on a high note, with a cheerful outlook.

This optimistic attitude will help you solve a crisis with a relative.

Prospects are bright and creative pursuits are highlighted.

Call attention to your talents by amazing contacts and exhibitions and promote yourself and your abilities.

Neglected tasks catch up with you on the weekend, and your mate's help turns home projects into fun.

A romantic surprise is coming.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Now's the time to move ahead with work projects.

Be prepared, as difficult choices in how to schedule your time may be ahead for you, but you've got the go-ahead to achieve whatever you want.

Midweek, expect both good news and bad news. Friends and relatives rally around, sympathizing with you, and also celebrating.

You should find love and romance in a recreational setting on the weekend. Long-standing relationships take on new romantic aspects.

Dog comes home from a walk — carrying a live grenade!

By JOE HERSEE

A rambunctious pup named Mongie set his whole neighborhood in an uproar when he went for a walk — and came home with a live grenade clenched in his teeth!

"I don't know where he got that damn thing, but he sure frightened the hell out of everybody," said flabbergasted Frank Hewett, 53.

"He could have blown us all to smithereens."

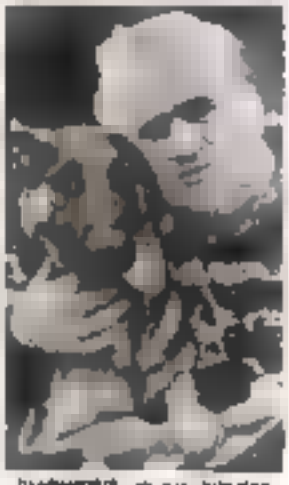
The former artilleryman was watching TV with his wife and 15-year-old daughter late one night when [illegible] Mongie trotted in with his find: a live hand grenade — and my heart nearly stopped."

Private Frank hustled his entire family outside and called police — touching off a full-scale bomb alert in his close-knit neighborhood.

"It was embarrassing, and kind of scary, too."

Eventually, an army bomb squad removed the grenade and blew it in safe surroundings. Mongie's proud owners could return to their home.

"The military people told us the old thing had been around since World War I but it still had a pin in it — and it still looked very deadly," Frank said.



"MONGIE'S always bringing home something," says owner Frank Hewett. But this time the playful pooch went both with a World War I grenade.

Scientists take wraps off mummy's face

By RICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

This is the face of a middle-aged woman who died 2,500 years ago!

It's the face of Wernebotep, the daughter of an Egyptian nobleman of the Toth dynasty whose mummy has resided in the Children's Museum in Indianapolis, Indiana, since 1958.

The startling re-creation of the Egyptian's face was made possible by the new technology of three-dimensional CT (computerized tomography) scans. The scans were carried out at the Indiana University Medical Center.

"It's her mummy face," explained Robert H. Pickering, the museum's curator of anthropology.

"But using X-rays [to create] a forensic facial reconstruction of an artist's rendering of

Babies die of loneliness

Babies are dying of loneliness because they're born into cribbed in rooms of their own.

Keeping infants in the same room as their parents or even cuddled up in the same bed could cut the risk of cot death in half.

Parents who keep their newborn babies in separate rooms are making a big mistake, says child expert Dr. Walter Barker of England's Bristol University.

Newlyweds fight like cats & dogs

By LAUREL SOWIE

More than a third of newlyweds in America have "big fights" at least once a week, a startling new study shows.

Dr. Samuel Pauker of Carroll Medical College surveyed 366 couples who'd been married and 14 percent fight about in-laws

- Most of the newlyweds were already wondering if their marriage would last, and 3 percent had already had an affair.
- 48 percent said they wanted more sex.
- 33 percent said they argue over money

"Ex-Truck Driver Gets $21,108 a Month Doing What You Aren't"

By Gunilla G. Lewis - Special Feature Writer

Orlando, FL — Two years ago, I was a struggling $12,000/year truck driver and I was just an average person and now I'm a millionaire. Here's how it all began," says Larry Lawrence, Titusville.

Larry began a few years ago with spending weekends at a yard dinner. But the cash didn't start to roll in until he discovered the hobby known as making money.

"Now, as a real hobby, Larry began to train everyday people, just like himself, how to duplicate his own success.

Already the results have been astonishing. For example, one person wrote "Augustus wrote that they had made $4,500 in an unbelievable 11 days."

"I even received one letter from Texas, I have discovered an absolute wealth in myself."

"For my program was proven" he says, "and we are allowed to buy our sparkling Mercedes, BMWs or Cadillac. We decide how much to work and how much we want. And people we are helping like a champion."

"Now we can really be the kind of person that we always wanted to be."

And what's more," he adds, "we make an extra $30000 on the way. Anyone think inflation?"

"Look, there's no magic wand, and part ... you're not going to make some quick. But it's worth it in fact," he adds. "I only want people who are willing to put forth some effort in my."

Now, you may not make as much as Zahak. But if you are a real "Go-Getter," you will make even more. And above all, the real goal is that you will the respect of your friends and family.

Zahak has offered to send further details to readers who want to learn his new wealth system. Simply send your name and address to:

TEEN TRIES TO SHOOT OFF HIS GIGANTIC NOSE

By JACK ALEXANDER

A tormented teen was teased so much about his enormous nose that he grabbed a gun and tried to shoot his honker off — twice.

Must nonetheless drew shielding fingers to pull the trigger.

But the bizarre plan backfired and desperate schoolboy Geoffrey Holman ended up with a bigger schnozz than before.

Tired of taunts from school chums, 15-year-old Geoffrey went into an isolated woods near his home in London, England, and shot himself through the nostrils.

He wanted to damage his nose so that his parents could be forced to take both to a doctor for free plastic surgery. But docs patched up the nose and sent him home. To hide his vile new handiwork, the red-faced kid told his parents and police that he was attacked by four men who tried to blow his nose away.

Cops believed his many initial lies until they found another blast through his nose. He was hospitalized.

"Geoffrey was very lucky he didn't really hurt himself," said a police officer. "If the bullet had hit the cartilage in his nose it could have knocked off what he breathes."

A hospital spokesman said Geoffrey was doing just fine after doctors used 18 stitches to patch up his damaged nose.

"I don't know what he was thinking about. I saw his nose and it wasn't that big. I have seen a lot bigger," said Detective John Lawson.

"But the other boys at school teased him all the time about it.

"His idea was that if he hurt his nose badly enough, the hospital would be forced to remodel it.

"But it didn't work. Because of the wound, it's worse now than it was before."

Police took no action against the teenager, but had a talk with his parents.

. . . but ends up with a bigger schnozz

A band of motorists rushed nervously jumped out of their cars and flagged traffic on a busy Los Angeles freeway to save a woman who was about to be raped, say cops.

The lady and her baby were alone when their car stalled on the freeway. Minutes later, four men stopped and one forced his way into the car.

Several motorists saw what was happening and went to the woman's rescue. Her assailant was charged with attempted rape, police said.

An orphaned 11-year-old cat named Bet is looking for someone who will always take care of him — and his $18,000 bank account!

The black and white feline is a real-life Pet Cat who will bring to his new owner his bitter pain, loads of affection and his bank book.

Bet was heir to a small fortune left by his owner when she died five years ago, with the stipulation the money only be used for his care and feeding. After his mistress died, Bet was adopted by a woman whose recent death again left him with no one to love and care for him.

Now Bill and Betty Corcoran, the Escondido, Calif., couple who manage Bet's trust account, are looking for someone to adopt the little critter.

But the Corcorans will make sure that applicants aren't just out to get their paws on his cash . . . and Bet will make the final selection.

MEDICAL SHOCKER:

Men can get breast cancer

Most folks think only women get breast cancer, in fact, men are stricken, too!

A whopping 900 American men are diagnosed with breast cancer every year and 400 of them die from it, say experts.

Like women, men should consult a doctor if a lump forms in the breast.

The treatment for breast cancer in men is the same as for women — surgery to remove cancerous tissue and follow-up with chemotherapy or radiation treatment.

Terrified cons say serial killer's spirit roaming the cell blocks!

By NELSON MANN

The ghost of serial killer Ted Bundy is said to be haunting Florida's Raiford Prison, tormenting convicts who are terrified of frying in the electric chair like he did!

"I don't believe in ghosts and spirits myself but something is scaring these cons to death," said a veteran guard at the prison in Starke.

"They say Bundy's ghost is prowling the cell blocks late at night, moaning and wailing like a soul from hell.

"They actually say they can smell the ghost. They say it stinks like burning flesh, like flesh that has been scorched in the electric chair."

In fact, Bundy fried like a slab of bacon in Raiford's electric chair — Old Sparky — on Jan. 24, 1989, after spending nearly 10 years on death row.

Nobody will ever know how many tragic young women he brutally raped and murdered — estimates run as high as 50 or more.

But his conviction in the death of 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City, Fla., was enough to get him a cell on death row and a date with the executioner.

Oddly enough, Bundy's tormented spirit first appeared at the prison on January 27, three days after the anniversary of his execution.

It was reported by a death row inmate who says he heard Bundy crying that morning until saw his gaunt, wasted face staring into his cell.

"The man is a murderer himself but he was really shaken up," said the guard. "Over the next few days other inmates said they saw Bundy's ghost.

"They say he's taunting them about dying in the electric chair, but the worst thing is the smell. They say it chokes them and burns their eyes. Like I told you before, I don't know of any guards who have seen the ghost. But the rats swear that it is real."

Stories about ghosts haunting prisons are nothing new. At one time or another virtually all prisons in the world have reported that the ghosts of dead or executed criminals have been spotted in hallways and cells.

Psychologist Richard Greene says hardened criminals often complain of being tormented by ghosts because it helps them cope with their guilt.

"It's a psychological defense mechanism," said the expert. "It proves that at least some hardened criminals feel remorse.

"Either that, or the ghosts are real. That's something that individuals must decide for themselves."

Doc uses laser beam to cut out patient's fat

A surgeon in Minnesota has made medical history by using a laser to cut out two pounds of fat from a man's abdomen.

The laser was used along with liposuction during the operation at the Abbott Northwestern Hospital in Minneapolis.

Designed to minimize the blood loss that is common during liposuction, the laser treatment cuts fat tissue rather than pulling it apart. With conventional liposuction, fat is pulled apart and then out of the body with powerful vacuum through a tube called a cannula.

In the new approach, a thin but high-energy laser apparatus is inserted into the cannula and used to cut the fat tissue before it is sucked out.

Not only is the cutting less likely to trigger bleeding, but the high-energy laser beam seals some blood vessels, said Dr. Thomas Dremel, who developed the technique.

Lobster prisons

Huge numbers of lobsters are trapping their clean-shaped bodies under the bottom of the ocean — and becoming prisoners for life!

Researchers at Maine Maritime Institute say as many as 50,000 traps are lost each year by fishermen and some of these traps become the prison cells of as many as eight lobsters. The creatures don't die — they survive by catching fish that float through their cages.

They nearly turned Jumbo Jin into a circus freak!

World's biggest baby kidnapped

By SCOTTY PAUL

The world's biggest baby nearly became a caged freak in a circus sideshow until his brave mother rescued him from two thieving thugs.

"They tossed my precious baby boy in the back of their truck like a sack of rice and headed down the road amid hopping mad mobs Mei Li.

"I did what any loving mother would do. I went after them and got my baby back."

Scale-shattering tot weighed 108 pounds at the tender age of 3 when The NEWS first told you about him in September. He now weighs 116.

A neighbor had snatched the baby one day and threw other children out of a van in Chikan, China, when the man barged through the front door waving guns and yelling to police officer Dong Ding.

They snatched up the giant toddler and took off as the shocked police officer screamed for help.

Baby Jin's mom was working in a field several miles away when he was abducted. His father was away on business. By the time she heard the awful news, the kidnappers had almost an hour's head start.

It was dark when the frantic mother jumped on her bike and pedaled after the crooks. Officer Ding was working late in a shop in a neighboring province, and no other cop was available in tiny Chikan.

Hours later the angry mom caught up with the scoundrels at a traveling circus eight miles away. "They were trying to sell my little boy," she said.

Witnesses later told police the fighting mad mom kicked one of the kidnappers in the groin and smashed his accomplice in the face with a rock as stunned circus hands stood by in utter amazement.

Thief freezes in his tracks — in stolen pair of wet jeans

By JOE BERGER

Bumbling burglar Boris Tanning swiped a pair of blue jeans from an indoor clothesline, slipped them on and fled into the night.

But hapless Boris' getaway came to a screeching halt — when the 38-below-zero weather from his wet pants into a block of ice!

"The air was so cold it froze those pants solid and stopped him in his tracks," said police investigator M.A. Industsky.

"The guy got two blocks away and suddenly he said his wet pants were so stiff he couldn't move. The officers packed him up like a plank of wood and carried him off to the police station."

The bizarre story began when burgling Boris, 23, broke into an apartment in Leningrad, Russia late one night.

The pockmarked burglar grabbed a small clock and a handful of change and headed for the door. But on his way out he spied a pair of prize American made blue jeans hanging from a line.

"The jeans were still soaking wet, but he wanted them so bad he couldn't wait to put them on," Inspector Industsky told reporters.

It proved to be a perilous mistake.

Moments later, Soviet Premiers Alexei Kosygin and Valeriya Fernandez heard Boris leave their apartment and slammed out into the bone-chilling cold to chase him down. It was a short chase.

They found the dazed burglar standing on a street corner shivering and struggling to walk.

"The jeans were frozen and his legs were like sticks," Alexei explained.

"His teeth were chattering so hard he could barely talk, but he begged us to help him inside where it was warm.

"There was a police station a block away so the cops came and hauled him off to their group. He was grateful just to be inside where he could thaw out."

It was so cold, the burglar at his right should have lost both of his front paws.

He had to be an idiot.

Blundering Boris pleaded guilty of burglary and was sentenced to 4 years in jail.

Dead passengers get free drinks, says ex-stewardess

If you die on an Air Canada flight you'll be ordered more free drinks than you ever put away, says a former stewardess.

Flight attendants on the airline are trained to act like normal flights deaths of passengers never happened, according to a series published in the magazine.

"Maybe it is just the Canadian way, but we were never really told to be sad passengers was not dead, only ill," according to the ex-stewardess' letter.

"It seems that the airline thought if we ran down the aisles screaming, 'Oh God, he's dead. The passengers would become alarmed and subsequently be too afraid to start drinking and buying duty-free shop.

"So we were told to inspect the seat beside the deceased, put a fake oxygen mask on him, turn his face toward the window and cover him with a blanket. The rest of the flight would be spent offering the dead man drinks and complimentary earphones to continue the charade.

"The thing I could never understand was that a flight attendant was reported to die before the body for landing. How can a corpse have any thing but a safe landing?"

Nonstop shoplifter stole 3,000 items in eight years!

By BILLIE BAUMGARTEN

A compulsive shoplifter was sentenced to a year in the slammer for stealing over 3,000 items in eight years!

And Hong Kong-born Ka Ki Chan, 46, didn't use or sell one bit of his $45,000 worth of booty.

He kept every single bit of it stored in his house like a pack rat.

A stunned police spokesman in Mold, Wales, described Chan's home as an "Aladdin's cave that was stacked to the ceiling with goods."

It took cops three days just to recover the items, which were all neatly boxed and labeled.

Most of the loot was stored in the attic — still in the original wrappings with the price tags on.

Chan had even written down where and when each item was stolen. Among some of the goods found were:

- 1,260 milk cans
- 88 pairs of silk boxer shorts
- 172 toys and games
- 66 pens or pencils
- 48 salt and pepper shakers
- 32 combs
- 24 clocks
- Leather wallets and handbags

$45,000 worth of booty found in original boxes!

The bulging bachelor visited stores in Liverpool and Chester at least twice a week from 1991 to 1999. His bizarre life of crime came to light after he was caught stealing food from a store in Chester.

The sixty-fingered accountant was a handy man who avoided shoplifting "like a thief," said his lawyer John Hodgson.

Hodgson said he was "extremely surprised" that doctors found no evidence of mental disorders in his client.

Chan, who had five previous convictions for shoplifting similar variety store items, was sentenced to 12 months in the clink.

Clumsy tooth doc gets a taste of his own medicine

By JOE SIEGER

Easygoing Al Hartmann writhed and squirmed for 90 agonizing minutes as a bumbling dentist nearly ripped his mouth to shreds. Then the peeved patient leaped from the chair — and turned the drill on the dumbo doc!

"He was hurting me so bad I just flipped out and shoved him down in the chair and started drilling away at his teeth.

"He started screaming his head off and I loved every minute of it. I know it was the wrong thing to do, but right then I just wanted to make the little creep pay."

The bizarre attack came to light when Dr. Klaus Goetz filed suit against the 46-year-old father of four in Hamburg, West Germany, seeking half a million dollars in damages.

But a judge ruled that Al didn't have to pay a dime for drilling the dentist because the doc's bungling provoked the attack. "The defendant's actions don't seem at all unreasonable for a man whose mouth was being ripped to shreds by an incompetent dentist," said Judge Wolfgang Peters.

Al's ordeal began just minutes after he arrived for his first visit with Dr. Goetz.

"All I wanted was to get my teeth cleaned, but the guy started poking around in my mouth and told me I had three cavities that needed filling," the disgusted dockworker recalled.

He said he was going to clean my teeth and do all the fillings right then, and he was going to hypnotize me so I wouldn't need any painkiller. I didn't like the idea, but I went along with it.

"After a bunch of abracadabra he went to work — until the guy turned out to be a butcher. He tore my gums bloody just cleaning my teeth, and when he started to drill, the drill kept slipping off and tearing holes in my gums and cheeks.

"I didn't want to be a baby, but I kept pleading with him to give me Novocain. And he kept telling me I didn't need it because I was hypnotized, which was total nonsense."

Finally, after an hour and a half of torture, the outraged patient got his revenge.

"I was so mad I couldn't see straight," he said later. "I pushed the little creep down in the chair and drilled some giant holes in his teeth.

"His screaming was music to my ears."

Animal lovers squash artist's plan to squish rat

Sniffy the rat got a new lease on life when the wacky artist who was going to squash him between two canvases backed out!

Canadian artist Rick Gibson returned Sniffy to a pet shop in Vancouver, British Columbia, after animal lovers stole the 50-pound computer black rat with which he planned to squash the rat.

The dedicated little critter's days are probably numbered anyway.

The owner of the pet shop Sniffy's gang had to trade most of his rats as snakes. Gibson told a crowd of about 300 people who'd gathered to watch his stunt.

Student pilot shoots plane after crash landing!

By MARTHA ATKINS

A student pilot got so ticked off after crash-landing his airplane that he pulled out a gun and shot his Cessna in the tail!

"That was just out of frustration more than anything else," said John Dawe, who shot the plane with his .357 Magnum. "It couldn't hurt the plane anymore.

"We were going to shoot the gun in case someone was looking for us. So why not shoot the plane and put it to rest?"

Dawe and a friend were about 1,000 feet above the ground when his Cessna ran out of gas. It was pitch black out and there was a heavy fog when he crashed in brushy woods near Anola, La.

The single-engine craft was destroyed in the crash but Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials were still puzzled when they discovered the bullet holes.

"He admitted he got mad after the crash and shot the airplane," said FAA spokesman Joe Bradley.

Dawe, 34, broke three ribs in the crash and his passenger, Peter Cowley, suffered cuts and bruises.

"I'm a Georgia boy," said Dawe, who lives in Alpharetta.

"I've been beat up worse fighting over women."

He blames air traffic controllers for the crash, saying he tried to land his plane for 1½ hours before the crash but wasn't given the proper clearance.

Air traffic controllers tried to direct the small craft to three different airports but it couldn't land because of bad weather and poor visibility.

The FAA is still investigating the accident and could revoke Dawe's student pilot's certificate because of the unauthorized flight.

"Our allegations are that he wasn't authorized for the cross-country flight or to carry passengers," said Bradley.

Matchmaking mix-up?

By SUSAN JIMISON

Divorced mother Hazel Thomas, 38, has fallen in love with a man her daughter's age, but that's all right — because her daughter, 19, is crazy about a guy eight years older than her mom!

The happy pair get a lot of stares when they go out on dates with their boyfriends, but they say their May-December matches were made in heaven.

Mom, 38, loves guy, 21, while daughter, 19, falls for man, 46

"Age doesn't matter to me," said daughter Donna Thomas, whose lover is 46-year-old Paddy Power.

"Paddy is a kind, considerate person and that's all that counts."

"My friends can't believe I've got a man younger than me," said Hazel. "They say our relationship must be like a mother and son, but I say it's like a teacher and pupil.

"And when they say he must keep me young I say, 'No! I keep him young.'"

Donna met Paddy through her mum. Now the love-struck twosome spend time in their own West London, England, home enjoying life together as a family.

"Donna has made me feel 21 again," said Paddy, a divorced real estate agent. "But I sure don't seem to get a lot of sleep these days.

"When the guys I work with are going home to their slippers and a hot cup of cocoa, I'm going out with a fun-loving teenager. I live for today, while most guys my age live in the past."

Alan, too, is enthusiastic about his love affair with a beautiful older woman. He says brunette Hazel is the ideal woman for him.

"Girls my age are jealous and over-emotional," said the young financial consultant. "But Hazel gives me the freedom and respect that maturity

Husband dropped wife off 8-story balcony on purpose, say police

An Army major said he scooped his wife up in his arms, stumbled, and accidentally dropped her over an eighth-floor balcony — but he may actually have been trying to kill her, say police.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A surprise witness supposedly saw Maj. David Schneider flip his wife Deborah over the railing shortly before midnight on November 14 at the Embassy Suites Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri.

The NEWS reported last December 3 that Maj. Schneider was going to carry his wife into an elevator, but stumbled and dropped her over the balcony.

Mrs. Schneider, 34, miraculously survived the fall, but suffered two broken legs, a broken pelvis and serious internal injuries.

"We have a witness who said she will testify that he pushed his wife off the balcony," said assistant prosecutor, David Deigh.

Cops charged Maj. Schneider, a 34-year-old West Point graduate, with first-degree assault, which means attempted murder under Missouri law. "It was no accident. That's the truth in the matter," said Maj. Schneider's lawyer, Richard Fickle. "They went down the hallway and all of a sudden he fell and dropped her."

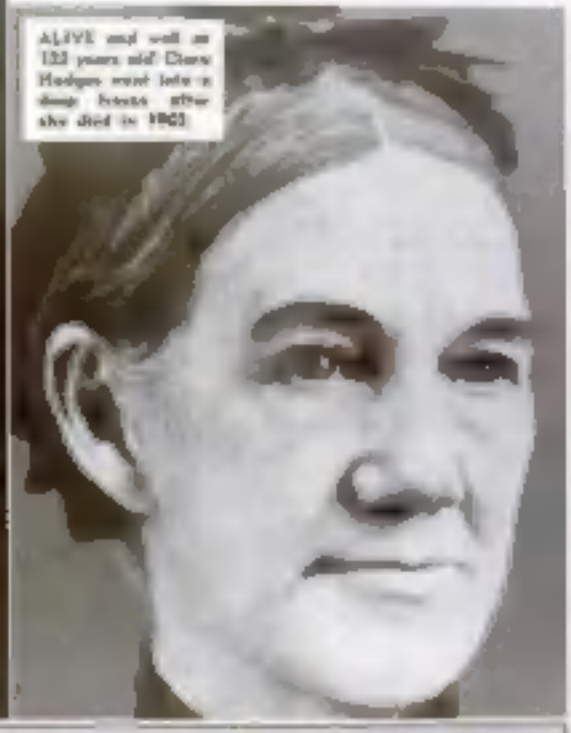
But the unidentified prosecution's witness said the couple got off the eighth-floor elevator and began talking, according to Deigh.

The witness then saw Maj. Schneider place his right hand on his wife's chest, his left hand on her back and flip her over the rail, said Deigh.

Mrs. Schneider may not testify at her husband's trial because she remembers nothing about the eight-story plunge, says prosecutor Deigh.

The couple have been married for 12 years and live with their two children in Leavenworth, Kans., near Ft. Leavenworth where Maj. Schneider is stationed. Mrs. Schneider is now staying with relatives.

World's first CORPSE



ALIVE and well at 123 years old Clara Hodges went into a deep freeze after she died in 1967.

Freeze your body — or just your head

Right now there are at least 25 dead people in the United States whose frozen bodies are stored in giant bottles waiting for the day science can bring them back to life!

They were all pioneers in cryonics, the practice of freezing dead people in the hope of bringing them back to life when there's a cure for what killed them.

If you'd like to catch a glimpse of the future, cryonics may be just the pop. Art McCombs of the Alcor Life Extension Foundation in Riverside, Calif., says it's easy to sign up and quite affordable if you pay with life insurance.

"Currently we have 15 people in suspension," said McCombs. "Four are whole body and nine are head only. We are in their 40s. Not all of them are wealthy, either.

"They're average, everyday people just like you and me."

Alcor charges a one-time $500 membership fee and members pay $200 a year in dues. They must also buy a life insurance policy that names Alcor as the beneficiary.

"The reason some people only have their heads frozen is they feel that what makes them who they are is all stored in their brains," said McCombs. "And in the future, science will be able to create a new body for them."

Ideally, the freezing process begins moments after clinical death.

"Three things occur at the same time," said McCombs. "The body is packed in ice, it's hooked up to a heart-lung machine to keep the heart pump

Either way, it won't cost an arm & a leg

drugs are given to prepare the body for freezing."

When the body is stabilized, it's transported to the Alcor facility and the blood is slowly removed and it's replaced with protective chemicals.

The body is wrapped in a bag and cooled to -110° F in a ethanol oil bath. Then it's placed in a big stainless steel container called a dewar that looks like a giant Thermos bottle. Over a two-week period, the body is slowly cooled to -320° F.

McCombs says that with scientific advances, those who are frozen can be expected to be thawed out in 100 to 200 years.

FROZEN 88 YEARS BROUGHT BACK TO LIFE!

By SUSAN JAMISON

American doctors working in secret have apparently revived a corpse frozen solid since 1962 — and restored the woman to perfect health.

Sources in government research facilities report persistant tales of the bizarre medical experiment in which the woman, 45 at the time she died of pneumonia, was successfully thawed and treated with antibiotics.

According to the rumors, the woman lived in Rhode Island in the Victorian era. She was an eccentric who paid to have her body frozen following her death in the hope that years later medical advances could restore her to life. Refrigeration had been perfected since a few years after its invention in 1834.

"The talk is she was called Clara Hodges and was a well known resident of Rhode Island at the turn of the century," said one U.S. government scientist, who requested anonymity. "When she was revived she identified herself by that name and gave her birth date as April 27, 1857.

"Apparently she has suffered no ill effects whatsoever from her 88 years as a frozen corpse."

Docs put her on ice back when Teddy Roosevelt was president

The hush-hush project involving Mrs. Hodges has attracted a number of top scientists, including a nationally known neurologist, a biochemist and two pulmonary specialists.

Since the woman regained her health, she has been undergoing intensive interviews with historians and psychologists as well.

The CIA is believed to have hidden Mrs. Hodges in a rural area in the Northeast, where she is under constant observation.

"This is the first time anyone has ever been revived from a long state of suspended animation and it's a historic event with many possible implications," the government scientist said. "There's overwhelming interest in it."

'Human time capsule' can teach us a great deal!

If tales of Mrs. Hodge's amazing revival are confirmed, we should be able to learn a great deal from her. Here are some of the events going on when she was frozen solid in 1962 after dying of pneumonia:

- The California gold rush is booming, with eager prospectors digging up $10 million worth of gold every year.
- Marie Curie and husband Pierre discover radioactivity and learn about uranium for the first time.
- Heroin is introduced worldwide as a cough suppressant, and aspirin is perfected as a pain killer.
- Coca-Cola has just hit the American market.
- The first trucksare — powered by steam — are making their appearance.
- Queen Victoria dies in 1901, and nine months later, U.S. President McKinley is shot to death. Theodore Roosevelt becomes president.
- Sylvania Electric Company starts manufacturing the first light bulbs.
- Henry Ford, an engineer in Detroit, has just formed his auto company.
